Annotation: The backbone of the family. The family plays an important role in the growth of economic and social development of the society, in the education of the growing young generation, and in the achievement of happiness of every person. Family and family values are the basis of every person's life. It is in the family that personal development begins, because values begin to inculcate the necessary skills for the harmonious development of a holistic nature.

Keywords: Family, society, young generation, values, family relations, perfect person, education.

The goal: The core of our spirituality is our national traditions, formed and matured in the heart of the family, at the threshold of the neighborhood, and our customs, values, and traditions, passed down from our ancestors to generations over the centuries, are also a symbol of our nationality. Young people are the largest and most active part of society. That is why their constant monitoring and control is one of the urgent issues of the time. Family values are qualities, characteristics, actions that all family members respect and emphasize and are a solid foundation for family relationships. The family plays an important role in the formation of values in young people. Family and family values are one of the main parts of harmonious and happy life of every person. The cooperation of parents and teachers is important in order for us to raise a healthy thinking young generation in our developing society. We will realize any noble goal through the youth. In their upbringing as a mature person, the cooperative activities of the family, community, the general public and the state are very important.

Considerations: The best way to teach family values is through concrete and honest examples from parents themselves. After all, one can show how to live in a family only by one's own example. If love, sincerity, honesty, mutual understanding, harmony, trust, respect prevail in the cells of society where children grow up, these will be their main family values in the future. The family develops in the child ideas about decency, fairness, kindness, consideration, compassion, honesty and moral rules in society. If the family is connected with relations of friendship, love, mutual trust, then a person receives a huge positive energy for his moral development. Parents in well-rounded families teach their children their own in the minds of our children, feelings of love for the country and the Motherland are formed in the family, in the neighborhood where they live. The country's future, peace and prosperity depends first of all on our children growing up in this small community. As long as education is well established in any family and neighborhood, that family and neighborhood will flourish. Paying attention to family, morals and education is one of our duties that is ingrained in our blood. The proverb "One child has seven neighboring parents" is typical of our nation. This proverb itself shows how important it is for us to raise children and family. The people of the neighborhood, especially the elderly, never passed by a child doing a dirty job on the street, and immediately reprimanded him and called him to the right path. To be beautiful in every way, polite, well-behaved, Our holy religion, which commands the purification of the soul, attaches great importance to the family. The atmosphere in the family is stable when parents feel their responsibilities. Along with parents, the neighborhood is a great example school for the young generation to grow up with manners. It is not for nothing that our people say, "A bird does what it sees in its nest." A parent who is raising a child should be able to show noble qualities in every action, behavior, behavior and interaction with others. Because the growing young generation is extremely imitative and observant by nature. Therefore, the people around him influence them with their habits, sometimes without realizing it. Rough relationships in the family, a lot of lying, Parental behavior plays an important role in raising a child. If a child grows up hearing harsh words from his parents and being beaten, this will have a negative effect on his nature. This, in turn, creates "spiritually sick" people from children raised in an unhealthy environment in the family. They also have a negative impact on the morale of society. Constant communication with loved ones, the feeling of confidence that close relatives of friendly people are close to each other instills peace of mind in a person. He can always count on their help and support in any life situation. In cases where even memories can be a source of inspiration, the factor of lack of loneliness plays an important role. Together with their loved ones, it is easier to overcome any sadness, difficult life situation and not to make mistakes in the future. In modern schools, great attention is paid to family values, and additional lessons are conducted on this topic. This decision is due to the fact that not all children have the opportunity to see a good example at home. As a result of these actions, the child understands the advantages of traditions and tries to create them in the life of adults. It is in the family that personal development begins, because values begin to inculcate the necessary skills for the harmonious development of a holistic nature. Family and values are forever intertwined and do not exist separately. If there is no family, then the family direction inevitably loses its importance. The best way to teach family values is through concrete and honest examples from parents themselves. After all, one can show how to live in a family only by one's own example. If love, sincerity, honesty, mutual understanding, solidarity, trust, respect prevail in the cells of the society where the young generation grows up, this will be their main family values in the future. The family develops in the child ideas about decency, fairness, kindness, consideration, compassion, honesty and moral rules in society. If the family is connected with relations of friendship, love, mutual trust, then a person receives a huge positive energy for his moral development. The basic system of national values is important not only in the field of education, but also for all life in our country. It understands the society of foreign countries, a person's relationship to family, country, work, social and individual development is prioritized. Therefore, it is very important for everyone to preserve the traditions of their family. Knowing the history of birth in his family is cultural and traditional of his people. Family traditions make it possible to create a high moral atmosphere in the family. Family traditions include celebrating the birthday of one of the family members, wedding ceremonies, anniversary parties or family celebrations dedicated to the awarding of one of the family members, inventions in a certain field. In the family, children and adults prepare gifts and give them to their owners with special excitement, creating such a festive and joyful situation, which creates a spiritual culture and unites the family as a community.

Summary: Parental and family environment is of great importance for raising a young generation with strong spiritual immunity, who can express their thoughts fluently, and who can achieve high goals. Especially today, when various dangers aimed at poisoning the spiritual world of young people are intensifying, only the young generation with strong faith, who deeply understands who they are and what kind of heirs they are, who live with love and loyalty to the motherland, will protect our holy land. will be able to protect our country from foreign and foreign influences, difficulties, and accidents, and to make our country prosperous in every way. Let's educate our children in such a way that they grow up loyal to their ancestors, their history, Motherland, mother tongue, nationality, religion and traditions. To all the definitions given to the family, it can be added that it is also a complex mechanism. In order to create a healthy environment in the family and maintain it for a long time, the outlook, views, and opinions of the family members should be close to each other.
